

Q. (Inaudible) but it's still got to be nice to be here?

GARY BENDERT: It is. It's a little frustrating, but I really don't care about the score, I just want to have fun. That's sort of a lie, I do care but I'm enjoying it, I'm enjoying it. It's much different out here than people think. It's not your typical round. They're trying to make me feel very comfortable but it is different.

Q. Do the nerves get to you a little bit when you're at this point?

GARY BENDERT: It wasn't so much nerves today, I guess I was really pumped up. I was just trying to kill the ball today for some reason and I was just trying to settle myself down. So many emotions going through. These guys have been doing it for 30, 40 years, they've got it down to a science. This is my first time.

Q. How do you handle the final round tomorrow?

GARY BENDERT: I'm really just going to enjoy it. Hopefully I can just get my swing back and have a real nice round.

Q. Yesterday certainly a frustrating one but yet you were all smiles, today a little more laid back. Has some of the excitement worn off a little bit and today might have been a little more frustrating for you maybe?

GARY BENDERT: Yeah, a little more frustrating but the excitement is still there. I'm not losing that. My hairs are standing up right now.
