

Q. I know a disappointing round yesterday but turned it on today?

WILL WILCOX: Yeah, yeah, I played a lot better. I've been having just a terrible last three months. Eric Eshleman in Birmingham helped me out to get a little more dialed in, so we'll see what happens over the weekend.

Q. Did some of those swing changes just kind of fall into place at least today, better swing thoughts?

WILL WILCOX: Yeah, I've never made double-double in consecutive holes in my pro career and I did that yesterday and it was just shocking. I can't believe I did that. So for them to kind of kick in to finish my round yesterday, that was huge and then just carried into today. But I found something on the putting green this morning and it made me feel a lot better so I just hope I can do more of it. I'm just glad to play in front of my friends and stuff this weekend.

Q. Good place to get it back going, too. Best ever pro start here last year. Do you feel like this is a place you can turn those last three months around?

WILL WILCOX: Just making the cut's huge because I've been missing cut after cut after cut. I got my old caddie back on the bag so we've got good vibes from last year so we'll see what happens. My expectations aren't very high because I'm still hitting some weird ones. But today was definitely nice, I haven't shot 7 under in a while.
