

ROUND 2 INTERVIEW
December 14, 2019

BILLY HORSCHER
BRENDON TODD (-19)

---

Q. After their second round, alternate shot, a tricky format with this wind picking up in places, but all things considered, how happy are you with the way you've worked in the past two days?

BILLY HORSCHER: Very well. I knew when Brendon was going to be my partner when Sneds had to withdraw I got a better partner. Sorry, Sneds. But Brendon's been playing really well, two wins, fourth place finish, I was probably the happiest guy in the world at that point. I've known Brendon since college days, he's a great putter. It's great to tee him back out here, he's been hitting some beautiful golf shots and we've been feeding off each other, really ham-and-egging it the last two days.

Q. I wasn't going to go there that this was a last-minute team duo here, but when you look at alternate shot and how difficult it can be, it's not something you're used to. Today where did you really start learning about each other?

BRENDON TODD: I think it comes into the greens, you know. We each have our strengths. Billy's hitting the ball really well, we're both putting two shots in the fairway. The tricky part is you're not putting every hole, so to get the speed of the greens down is just tough out there, but I think we ham-and-egged it pretty good.

Q. No doubt. Before I let these two go, I've got to tell you that Brendon's son, who's five years old, Oliver, what he asked Santa for was a trophy cause because this guy has two trophies already in the short season, so Santa, please deliver on that.
