
Q. Tyrrell, 4 under in the last four holes, what kind of spark did you maybe find there towards the end of the round?

TYRRELL HATTON: Well, we just, we holed some decent putts was it on 6, so I would guess that was probably from about 30, 30-odd feet, 25 feet on 7 and then around 25, 30 feet I think on 9. They're not the type of putts that you hole consistently, so to finish the round that way, I'm obviously very pleased with that. Yeah, nice to see some putts go in.

Q. This is a course you kind of sometimes have to be a little bit more conservative on when you're rolling the ball as well as you were today. Does it allow you to be aggressive knowing that you've got a hot putter in the bag?

TYRRELL HATTON: I mean, to be fair, up to that point I really hadn't holed -- I didn't feel like I holed too much. There was a lot of good par saves where short game helped me out, yeah, that kept me in it. Thankful to have a good finish, start hitting in the middle of the clubface again, and yeah, hope that continues over the weekend.

Q. Why do you feel like you play hard golf courses well?

TYRRELL HATTON: I have no idea. I mean, I guess with my mental approach from the outside looking in, you'd suggest that they wouldn't be great for me, but I always try my best and yeah, this week and a tough golf course is no different.

Q. When you play as well as you did today, going into the weekend is there anything you're going to focus on either improving that you either weren't really proud of over the last two days or is it more just focusing on the stuff you're doing well to make sure that you can continue to do that?

TYRRELL HATTON: To be honest, I won't really think about it until we start hitting balls 40 minutes before our tee time tomorrow. Tomorrow's a new day, you have new feels, try and get comfortable again and go out there and try our best.
